

KWC joins forces with Apollo

KWC have always been a company built on innovation. From the first pull-out spray kitchen mixer introduced into the market in 1957, up until the recently released Eve, which integrates LED lighting into kitchen tapware. KWC products add style, quality and sophistication that one comes to expect from something that is "Swiss Made."

When it came time for Adelina Vozzo, of Winning Appliances, to update her kitchen its no surprise that she chose KWC. As a great supporter of KWC, Adelina and Winning Appliances, both know the touch of class that a KWC product brings to the home. In conjunction with Apollo Kitchens at Smithfield, Adelina was able to give new life to her kitchen. With appliances from Neff, Miele and KWC she can now have the whole family over. "We both have large families and we were sick of only ever serving cold food and having messy cleanups afterwards" Adelina said. The KWC Eve, with its pull-out aerator has given Adelina and her family greater flexibility in the kitchen, all while creating a great centrepiece for the most used area of the home.
